

You are a part of the Conservation team at the Teno Country Park

By adhering to the following suggestions during your visit, you can be an active participant in the conservation efforts in this area:

- Stay on the designated paths and respect the privacy and way of life of the local inhabitants.
- Avoid making a lot of noise; you will discover much more of the life going on around you.
- Take all your litter, including organic waste with you when you leave. This will contribute to maintaining the beauty of the countryside and will prevent the increase of rodents in the area.
- Take special care when disposing of cigarette butts.
- Do not take plants, animals, or other objects from their natural environment. Doing so could result in the loss of irreplaceable resources.
- Please report all accidents or incidents to the Park Warden. This would be very much appreciated. You can inform in the telephone number 922 128 032, or the direction of electronic mail tenoparque@cabtfe.es

Talavera

A journey millions of years in the making Along the path between Los Silos and El Palmar, you will discover a spectacular landscape created by successive volcanic eruptions, the patient sculpturing of the wind and water and the contributions of both past and present inhabitants.

A winding rocky path rapidly ascends allowing you to contemplate the Isla Baja, the deep gorge of the Los Pasos Ravine and the remarkable formation of the Montaña Talavera and Roque Blanco.

The now abandoned houses and threshing floors of Talavera, speak of past survival in precarious times for agricultural and cattle farmers.

As you gain altitude, the simple coastal vegetation begins to be replaced by a more luscious variety right up to the Monteverde.

From the highest point of the path, you will be able to see the whole of the wide and fertile valley of El Palmar, where this route comes to an end.

ROUTE DETAILS

Approximate duration: 4 hrs
Approximate altitude: 6.700 m
Characteristics: Very uneven path for the first part of the walk. Some areas can become slippery when wet.
Difficulty: Medium
Climate: The higher up you go, the cooler and damper it becomes. Sudden changes in temperature and rainfall are possible.
Recommended Materials: Strong and comfortable walking shoes, warm clothing, raincoat, sun hat and sun cream, water and something to eat. Walking sticks may be useful.

There is regular public transport in Erjos and Los Silos. We recommend that you consult the timetables before beginning your walk.
